DRAFT BAIT

A convocation entitled, "Military Service and the College Student," is now being planned to inform non-veteran students about the various circumstances that they face. A question and answer period will also be held. Dates and particulars will be announced later.

Men Must Now Reside On Campus

The often mentioned but never enforced University rule that all non-Bridgeport area students live in a dormitory is in for some use in the next few semesters according to the Office of Student Personnel.

Until the construction of the new woman's dormitory which released the older residence hall for male students, most campus men were forced to live in apartments and rooms around the area. Now, however, the Office of Student Personnel states that these people will have to take up residence on campus.

The rule applies to all single students under 21 years who are not veterans of military service. At present there are 363 men students living in campus residence halls as opposed to 312 women.

Bowen Fills Kern's Post In Administration Shift

Mrs. Dorothy Edwards Bowen has been named Director of Admissions at the University effective this week, University officials announced.

It wasn't so long ago that Mrs. Dorothy Bowen was applying to the Office of the Director of Admissions as a student. Ironically enough, she ended up right where she started, but now she's running the place.

Dr. Donald W. Kern, director of admissions for the past six years has become professor of education and director of guidance in the College of Education.

Mrs. Bowen has served as assistant director of admissions since April, 1956. She is a graduate of Bassick High school and of the University, where she received her bachelor of science degree in educational psychology.

Dr. Kern will be responsible for the admission of graduate students in the College of Education. He will also teach professional guidance courses given in connection with the guidance and personnel program at the graduate and sixth year level.

A cum laude graduate of East Stroudsburg State Teacher's College, Dr. Kern received his master's degree in education from Duke University and ED. D. degree from New York University.

He taught in public schools in Pikeville, North Carolina, East Mauch Chunk, Pa., and Westwood and Rutherford, N. J. before coming to the University of Bridgeport in 1948 as vocational and educational counselor.

UB Health Dept. Views Asian Flu With Caution, Not Fear

With the Asian Flu knocking at Connecticut's door, after a quick twist through New York, the University Health Department is taking primary precautions to offset epidemic possibilities should the bug decide to enroll here.

Most national health authorities agree that the Flu is not a potential killer and should not be viewed with alarm. They do maintain, however, that the Asian Flu, like any other serious non-fatal ailment, weakens the body's resistance to more serious diseases. Thus, they suggest precaution, rest and vaccine shots.

University Nurse Sylvia Riley wholeheartedly accepts this view and states that her department is mobilizing to meet any circumstance that might arise. At present time there were no cases of the Flu on campus and only a few isolated cases in the City of Bridgeport. In the event that a larger number of dormitory students should catch the sickness, Mrs. Riley feels that her department will be able to cope with the situation.

She pointed out that the new Health Center is able to take care of 14 patients while a dormitory can be turned into a hospital in a matter of hours.

But whether the Flu hits the University on a grand scale or not, the Health Department feels that all students should make every precautionary effort against it.

The Connecticut Health Department has promised 1000 vaccine shots to the University, but they have not arrived as yet. When they do however, they will be available to students and faculty for one dollar. The monetary charge is made for the service and not for the vaccine itself.

Throughout the country theories on the effect of the flu have ranged from "run for the hills" philosophies to "it's just another cold" apathy. The middle ground opinion expressed by most medical people seems to be basically this:

You feel fine and then abruptly feel like either you or the world just caved in. You're weak as a Teacher's College lineman and your head feels like a million morning-afters rolled into one. You run a fever up to 104 and have a moderate sore throat and all the symptoms of an irritating cold.

The danger lies in thinking you are well too soon after the bug has left and you usually are susceptible to many other ailments of a more serious nature like pneumonia.

Mrs. Riley suggests that anyone contracting the flu should phone the Health Center and report their absence in order to qualify for an excused medical cut from classes.

Office hours for the University Nurse are 9-11:30 a. m. and 2-4 p. m. The doctor's hours are 9:30-10:30 a. m.

'Asian' or 'Asiatic' You're Still Sick

Been wondering why some magazines and newspapers can't make up their minds whether to call the current flu "Asiatic" or "Asian?"

Well, to be honest about it, no one really knows. It seems that both are permissible in English, but your choice indicates how you feel about the Asian People.

If you say "Asian Flu" you mean that the disease was passed on to the rest of the world by the continent itself. If you say "Asiatic Flu" however, you are placing the blame directly on the people of Asia.

A national television show debated the point a few weeks ago and came to no definite conclusion, except that the Red Chinese are our enemies and we might as well blame them.

The Scribe feels that the Red Chinese are not the only people in Asia and has accepted the continent as the villain rather than the poor Malays, Indians, Japanese and a hundred other nationalities.

The danger in attributing a disease to a person usually gives the wags a chance to drum up old gags like "I have Bright's disease and he has mine."

Even the interest of humanitarians the Scribe says "Asian Flu." But then you pay your money and you take your choice so the selection is yours... and so the Flu, we don't want it.

All kidding aside, the Scribe urges every student to follow the precautions issued by the Health Department. The reader you save may be ours.

WHAT TO DO TO PREVENT THE FLU

- Get lots of rest.
- Avoid sick people.
- Wash your hands frequently.
- Avoid fatigue and chilling.
- Keep in good physical condition.
- Get a vaccine shot.
- Say a prayer.

IF YOU GET IT, HERE'S ALL YOU CAN DO

- Go to bed and stay there.
- Keep a liquid diet.
- Aspirin helps.
- Avoid drafts.
- Get lots of sleep.
- Use personal drinking glass.
- Say two prayers.

Has Alumni Hall outlived its usefulness? Do the students of the University of Bpt. need a new Student Union building? Why do we need one? These are but a few of the questions raised, that the following list of reasons will endeavor to substantiate the fact that there is a need.

Caprio

1. The lack of space is one of the most prominent reasons. Lunch and dinner time in Alumni will prove this. Also the fact that some fraternities are holding their meetings off campus because of the lack of sufficient places.
2. The comments emanating from parents concerning the outward and inward appearance of this antiquated building.
3. The inadequate facilities to service the great number of students who enter Alumni during the day. A rough estimate puts it at well over 800 students during the course of a day.
4. The fact that one of the main purposes of Alumni Hall is to act as the living room of the campus. It should serve as the center of student activities. Can you imagine the drab and dismal place as your living room at home?
5. The ever increasing enrollment at U.B. necessitates a new and larger building to accommodate the present students and the future ones.
6. The lack of game rooms with facilities for ping pong, billiards and the like.
7. The present cafeteria facilities are entirely too small to meet the needs of the student body. There are times when students go elsewhere to eat rather than wait in line and gulp down their food so as not to miss or be tardy for a class. Since we all pay, at registration, a fee for the maintenance of Alumni Hall, no one student nor group should be denied the privileges this fee affords them.
8. The need for a place to hold certain functions that must be held during the year. The Freshmen Week activities are an example offered here. Those of you who saw the mass confusion connected with the coffee affair given for parents and freshmen, will comprehend this phase of the need.
9. The fact that this may be self-sustaining unit in the maze of units that compose U.B. It is roughly estimated that the revenue received from Alumni Hall tallies somewhere in the neighborhood of $1800.00 a week. Subsequently one would conjecture that Alumni Hall isn't running in the red.

O.K. bud, perhaps we do need a new Student Union building; but what can I, as an individual, do about it? Talk is cheap, but the correct actions could bring about changes, so what do we do? The Student Council is one vehicle that may be used to stir up some concrete action. After all, they supposedly represent the entire student body. Tell your representative to get on the ball and see what Council can do. The Alumni Hall Board of Governors has student representation on it. Tell them to get up off their laurels and check into the matter. Have your parents, who voiced opinions during Freshman Week and other visits to our Hallowed Halls of Ivy, write. If this combination fails, we'll look for other methods.

Students of U.B. unite on this matter, you have nothing to lose but this haven for termites.

POST NO BILLS

The Administration announced this week that campus organizations were forbidden to hang announcements indiscriminately around the campus. It seems that groups of all kinds have been having a field day with ditto machines and have plastered announcements on every tree, post and fence from Seaside Park to Atlantic Street.

We can agree with the Administration's position that bulletin boards are provided for announcements and not the flora dotting the campus. But our agreement is not based on the aesthetic question: Do handbills create an eyesore? Alas, we must be coldly scientific.

It is our belief that the rampant posting of announcements doesn't prove anything and certainly does not bring students flocking to an organization's door. We say this because we know the measure and worth of advertising.

If the haphazard posting of bills is all that is necessary to sell an idea or product to the general public, then most of the manufacturers have been pouring millions into Madison Ave. Advertising Agencies for naught.

Advertising is a skillfully planned, thoroughly executed device that has taken into consideration the subtleties of human motivation and the realities of competition.

What we are saying is that no one reads the blasted things so why mess up the campus? Let's face the situation realistically. The average student, in the course of the day, sees hundreds of announcements. They are all done on ditto machines, they are about the same size and usually contain the same information: When and where an organization is going to meet.

The average student doesn't stop to read them because they are not pleasing to his eye, and for all he knows he might have already read it on another tree.

Keeping these things in mind, we feel that the Administration was quite correct in checking "posting fever," and suggest that campus organizations utilize the new Campus Clock in the Scribe to announce their meetings.

Forms have been distributed to all the organizations on campus that should be turned into the Scribe before noon on Fridays. We feel that in this way all the information that a student needs about an organization is placed before him in one package.

If an organization feels that it has more to tell, it should send a representative to the Scribe office with the details.

Vox Populi

Dear Editor:

I should like to express my deep appreciation for the kind words your editorial of Sept. 26 expressed regarding fall registration.

May I point out to you that Dean Bigsbee of the Junior College has been acting as consultant on registration ever since he gave up primary responsibility a year ago. If registration has improved from the students' point of view, I think that Dean Bigsbee should be given primary credit for it.

Sincerely yours,

Fumbles Foil Knights Bid For Flawless Grid Season

by Roger Lefkon

Bridgeport's Purple Knights, riding high on a "one game winning skein," came galloping into the fair city of Chester, Pa., home of Pennsylvania Military College, this past Saturday. Approximately three hours and seven fumbles later, the Knights rode out of town holding the short end of a 13-6 decision.

Criteria for selection are listed below:

1. The candidate should be a good organizer and have shown evidence of this. He should be able to administer the affairs of his group effectively.
2. The candidate should be creative and have initiated one or more new projects in the activities area at the University, which have been carried through to a successful completion.
3. The candidate should be responsible and industrious and see that the important details of his group's projects or plans are carried out successfully. (In cooperation with the other members of the group.)
4. The candidate should be able to develop teamwork, and should be able to get the various individuals and sub-growths within his group working together harmoniously toward a common goal.
5. The candidate should have a minimum of a 2.5 Cumulative Q.P.R. Worthy candidates with less than a 2.5, but not less than a 2.3 will be considered if they have earned a minimum average of 2.8 during the immediately preceding semester.

It was a sad, cruel, disappointing afternoon for Coach Kay and his "Go-Go Knights," who, apparently were concentrating so hard on next Saturday's tilt with New State, that they overlooked a stubborn Penn. Military eleven. It wasn't as though the UB offensive machine stalled—it just never got started... until it was too late.

A crowd of over 2,000 saw Penn. take charge of the game from the outset, building up a 13-0 lead late in the third quarter. Penn. piled up 179 yards on the ground to 129 for the Knights.

The Knights handled the pigskin as though it had the Asiatic Flu, giving it up five times on fumbles in the first half. Penn. converted one of these fumbles into a touchdown and drove 73 yards for the other, to grab a 3-0 lead. With six minutes remaining in the game, quarterback Mickey Donahue fired three bullet passes to halfback George Dixon, good for 45 yards, to set up UB's lone tally. Moments later, Donahue romped to paydirt on a 7-yard sneak.

Penn.'s second consecutive victory of the young season tumbled UB from the ranks of the undefeated; their current record now stands at 1-1-1.

Last year New Haven State was the only unbeaten and untied eleven in New England. The Teachers, who bowed to Westchester State Teachers, 47-6, last Saturday will be counting on "Little All-America" center, Lou Pitney and "All-State" guard, Vern Mattson come 2 p. m. Saturday.

Bridgeport will return to the friendly confines of Hedges Stadium on Oct. 18, to play host to American International College.

Carr Presides Over Meeting

Judy Carr, president of the Women's Athletic Assoc. at the University will preside at the annual fall meeting of the Connecticut Athletic and Recreation Federation of College Women to be held at the Gym tomorrow.

Miss Carr, a senior majoring in physical education, will direct the discussion on problems inherent in women's athletics as well as formulating plans for a regional conference of the CARFCW, which will be held this spring.

Along with the University delegation, New Haven and Danbury State Teachers Colleges and UConn will be represented.

Boofers Bow To Hofstra U.

With only 45 seconds in the second overtime period, history repeated itself, and Hofstra's Jim Patterson scored the deciding goal on a short boot from in front of the UB twines, to give the Dutchmen a 3-2 win.

Al West just missed blocking the shot for what would have been his fifteenth save of the game. West was called on by Coach McKeon to replace the injured George Dieter.

The game started slow but soon turned into an exciting contest. With 15 minutes gone in the first period, Chuck Paterno scored the initial goal of the game for the knights. The score remained 1-0 until early in the second period, at which time Jack Allenby of Hofstra, drove in and scored on a direct shot over the outstretched hands of Al West. Hofstra kept pressing the knights in this period, but the fine defensive work of Gordon Douglas and Stan Roman kept them from scoring. It wasn't until 14 minutes had passed in the second period that Everitt Merritt slipped through the Hofstra defense and scored the second UB marker of the afternoon. UB left the field at half-time leading 2-1.

The score remained 2-1 until 20 minutes were gone in the final period. Hofstra was awarded a free kick and White of Hofstra came in to take the shot. White missed the boot, but put in the rebound to knot the score at two apiece. There was a question as to whether Hofstra had 12 men on the field at the time, but a short conference between the two coaches and the referees, the goal was verified.

After a scoreless first overtime Patterson broke up the game before a minute of the second overtime session had passed.

Any UBette possessing a pleasant voice, and who would enjoy working as a disc jockey should contact John Metcalf immediately.

Lenny's Wagon Wheel, on Friday night will be the scene of POC Fraternity dance. Gath- from all reports, the affair should be a very enjoyable one for all who attend. The fellows have a surprise. Remember it's Friday at 9 p.m. in Lenny's Wagonwheel.

SPORTSTALK

by Roger Lefkon

There is a twenty-three year old, 6-1 junior, hailing from New Haven, walking around the campus these days. He's soft-spoken and he plays football fairly well, too. His name is Dixon—George Dixon. Ever hear of him? If you haven't, don't be alarmed, you will.

There is an old adage about local boys making good in front of their home folks. Well, a fellow named George Dixon will have his chance this Saturday afternoon and if he does half as well as the Yankees' Tony Kubek did against the Braves last week-end, the crowd, that is expected to attend, is in for quite a performance.

George Dixon began his football career while attending Hillhouse, in New Haven, known for its outstanding athletic teams. Following his graduation from Hillhouse, where he played end, Dixon attended Arnold College for one year during which time he played one game against Upsala College as an end. He then left Arnold and entered the service of Uncle Sam, where he played service ball for two years at Fort Dix and later with the Tenth Division overseas.

While in the service Dixon was coached by Gay Salavucci, who transformed Dixon from an end to a halfback and according to George, it was a change for the better. While playing halfback in the service, Dixon received honorable mention on the All-Army team.

After his outstanding performance against Northeastern two weeks ago, in which he chalked up 114 yards to lead the Knights in yards gained rushing, one might be led to believe that Dixon would rest on his laurels. But to the contrary—he is a perfectionist, who believes he is capable of giving an even superior performance on the field, and do you know something?—I think he will.

When questioned about the forward wall, Dixon commented, "If we had a bigger line, the team would be unbeatable." His point is well taken, as it now stands our linemen are being asked to do the job of two men whenever we come up against a bigger team.

So keep your eye on number 42 the next time you are at Hedges Stadium—he's worth watching.

UB Talkers Set Season, Topic Picked

After a successful season last year, campus debaters started cutting their teeth this week on the new national topic that will serve as the point of argument in their meets throughout the 1957-58 season.

The topic for this year is, Resolved: That the requirement of membership in a labor organization as a condition of employment should be illegal.

The national topic is selected at a national convention of debating societies and is the only subject on which competing teams may argue during the year. The usual format is to allow the visiting team to argue the affirmative although it is not an iron-clad law.

The campus debaters have already been invited to attend the annual debate tournament at the City College of New York later in the year and are now in the process of arranging their debate schedule.

Last year the debaters topped off the season by downing Harvard in a meet on this campus. During the season as they participated in meets at other schools as well as tournaments.

Dr. Justus van der Kroef and William Banks will serve as advisors to the groups again this year.

PRF Revamps Vote System For Students

The Political Relations Forum high-geared its activities this week and outlined the highlights of their year's program before the organization in a meeting yesterday.

The Forum initiated plans for a permanent election system on campus to replace the present routine used by student voters. Under their constitution, the Forum is responsible for officiating at all campus elections.

They also took primary steps in planning their annual banquet and to prepare for the Connecticut Intercollegiate Student Legislative session in Hartford next March.

Last year the Forum in conjunction with the Sociology Society and Pi Gamma Mu, the sociological fraternity, held their annual dinner at the Gym and invited John Lodge, ambassador to Spain, to speak.

Officers for the coming year are: Judy Carr, president; Bob Scholl, administrative assistant; Rachel Smith, treasurer; Ed Ramos, senior delegate; Grace Chanovitt, corresponding secretary; and Shirley Sabo, recording secretary.

The GERMAN CLUB will hold its first meeting this year, OCTOBER 14, at 8 p. m. in BISHOP HALL LOUNGE.

PROGRAM: Election of officers, German songs, Refreshments.

Faculty Women Hold First Meet

The first meeting for the season of the University's Faculty Women's Club will take place tomorrow at 8 p. m. in the Bishop Hall Lounge.

Mrs. Florence Ballou Robinson, noted handwriting analyst, will speak on "What's in a Name?"

Mrs. Robinson has been a student of handwriting analysis for many years and has studied with experts. She has one of the most complete graphological libraries on the subject. At one time she had her own commercially sponsored program on handwriting analysis and has been heard many times as guest on radio and television.

Wolff Explains Med Fee Hike

Hoping to clarify any misconceptions that might have arisen out of the $15 infirmary fee levied on all dormitory students, Dr. Edward Wolff, director of student personnel, stated this week that the fee does not entitle students to any more clinical services than they received in the past.

He pointed out, however, that the University has expanded the infirmary with the renovation of Wilton Hall into a small campus hospital and has hired a full-time housemother as well as relief personnel to insure 24 hour service to students.

Wolff explained that the fee was used to expand the infirmary and its personnel and not the clinical services.

Effective this fall semester a Sunday Mass will be celebrated by Chaplain, Rev. John F. McGough, at Newman Hall Chapel at 10 a. m. Confessions will be heard at 9:45 a. m.
